

RESPECT

People • Work • Communities

One million people make less than $10 an hour in Ontario. Our communities are changing. Not just the faces or languages spoken, but the opportunities are different than before. We are tired of being told that this is a just-in-time economy and a disposable society – and we should get used to it. We want those in power to value who we are and what we do.

- ✓ respect my right to a minimum wage of at least $10.00 now!
- ✓ respect my right to have a stable full-time job
- ✓ respect my skills and experience, wherever I gained them
- ✓ respect my rights to have housing and childcare
- ✓ respect my right to have a union voice at work
- ✓ respect my rights for social benefits if I need them
